

Friday, January 12, 2007

Sharonville may decide Jan. 30 whether to study Fields Ertel Rd

SHARONVILLE - Council members may vote on whether or not the city will study improvements for Fields Ertel Road at Sharonville council's next meeting on Jan. 30.

Sharonville would pay $52,000 of a total $275,000 for a study of a 2.7-mile stretch of Fields Ertel Road, one mile of which lies within Sharonville borders.

The study will take about one year, and will include a conceptual plan and cost estimates.

Other parts of the road are in Butler County, Symmes Township, Sycamore Township and Warren County. Hamilton County engineers are also involved.

"It's narrow, it's congested, you can't get from the side streets on to Fields Ertel," said Sharonville Safety Service Director Al Ledbetter. "There's a safety issue with the corner of Butler/Warren Road and Fields Ertel. And since it lies in multiple jurisdictions, nobody can fix it themselves."